What are you searching for? where are you going?

In my sleep, I see a figure I think I remember from somewhere and try to chase after them

When I wake up from my dream, I can't recall who it was in the gaps of this falling broken time, I'm just wandering aimlessly

These feelings that I let pour out, they won't reach anyone anymore

If even loneliness is fated for me

Then hold my trembling heart tightly

My whole body is crying out as if it were lost in an infinite maze
With memories full of cracks and scratches, I'm wandering until I reach the end of this sadness

Whether in a world without lies or an era that doesn't exist anywhere

I want to make certain of this dna that's engraved only into me

Keep searching for the figure of yourself who is struggling and shouting out, trying to live

Before I knew it, my tears had dried up even the pain that'd been blocked out starts to ache

It's only you that I won't let go of again

Please never disappear even if your promise is a short-lived one, I'll just hold on to the warmth in my hands

In an endless, deep darkness, unable to touch anything

As long as the memories between only the two of us won't change... please promise me that

Even if wishes don't come true even if the world has no answers for you

To love someone or not, that alone is something your dna decides

I want to strongly burn that smile of yours into my memory for when I look back even if it's just an illusion

Hidden from yourself, there's another you inside, whispering something to you

"There's only one thing you're searching for..." these hands are telling me the truth

My whole body is crying out as if it were lost in an infinite maze

With memories full of cracks and scratches, I'm wandering until I reach the end of this sadness

Whether in a world without lies or an era that doesn't exist anywhere

I want to make certain of this dna that's engraved only into me

Keep searching for the figure of yourself who is struggling and shouting out, trying to live
