La la la la la...

If snow would start fluttering down right now, I'd be able to get closer to you
For me, who doesn't even have the courage to do that, my right hand is still in my pocket
Searching for a chance, I saw you looking down at the ground and I felt confused about what I should do
That's why I simply hid our faces with a checkered muffler and kissed you

Every time I try to tell you how kind you are, my clumsiness becomes obvious
After showing you that side of me, to say "I like you" I can't quite make it sound good

The snow began to fall our breaths turned white the distance between us gradually gets smaller
Even if a checkered-pattern intersection comes, we'll cross it while holding hands

If we should argue over where to go on our next date or about a difference of views
The muffler we'd been wrapped in back then will be warm enough for us even now

The same amount of happiness I've gotten from you, I wonder if I'll be able to give it back
Whatever tomorrow comes, stay by my side it doesn't matter whether it's with smiles or tears I want to tell you how I feel

The snow has piled up and it's glittering even more now it's shining the path for us to go forward on together
Let's turn the same street corner and keep going with the love we've achieved lighting our hearts

The snow began to fall our breaths turned white the distance between us gradually gets smaller
Even if a checkered pattern intersection comes, we'll cross it while holding hands

In this unchanging landscape no matter how much time passes I want to look at it all with you, even the winters that come around
The snow that melted when touched by these feelings I'm sure it'll fall again next year, don't you think?
