In the sky, evening is drawing near I found a train of clouds there
Suddenly I want to go back to that city with the smells familiar to me
People earnestly pass the time, their feelings weaving together

Now, I feel each of their smiles close to me

People you want to meet are there spreading their kindness, they're waiting for you

The mountains, the wind, and the color of the sea it's the place I can be the most honest

Stories that won't be forgotten are there holding hands, we hum a song

The mountains, the wind, and the color of the sea this is my hometown

In the colors of the morning glow in the sky, there's a single twinkling star

Its small light shines on a large courage inside

If we search for the seeds of tomorrow within these carefree days

The bell of a new beginning will sound for you now

Because there are days when it rains, a rainbow appears because we overcome hardships, we become stronger

The path that I'll walk on and the map that leads to my dream, they are both in my heart

I want to treasure forever the memories of friends that help me

The path that I'll walk on and the map that leads to my dreams that is my hometown

People you want to meet are there spreading their kindness, they're waiting for you

The mountains, the wind, and the color of the sea it's the place I can be the most honest

Stories that won't be forgotten are there holding hands, we hum a song

The mountains, the wind, and the color of the sea this is your hometown

My hometown

This is our hometown
