We laid on the beach while holding each other
The sky that didn't have a cloud in it seemed kind of sad yes it definitely was
We ran through that short summer
It's sad that the color of this suntan will fade someday like we'll forget t he present

Looking at the setting sun which cast my shadow, I said, "thank you" Without feeling awkward, however being able to say it directly

Throwing away everything and stopping time once again right now
The dream that I painted if I believe that my wish is an approach run, I'll be able to fly
When we gather again here someday and chat
The footprints from the days which I traveled with a wind of my own will be covered by the waves

Our dreams were floating on the water's horizon Lying about meaning for living and only watching them for eternity is painfu l, isn't it?

Today the tumbling dreams that don't come true are becoming stars
And gently shine down on the endless sea

Summer simply passes as I feel this way I'm not confident But if I think that these emotions are the sky and my vow is the clouds, I f eel like I can fly
When we gather again here someday and chat
This wind from today, this small moment in the universe will be covered by t he waves

This short summer is trying to end
I'm just watching the seashore Right now, like this, the blue sea is rising
The sky is still watching us now

That's right, we'll get together again even if we have worries, we'll talk a nd laugh
I dressed up and I seemed to glow the setting sun from those days will shine again
And those embarrassing days will be enveloped as the wind wraps around me

Throwing away everything and stopping time once again right now
The dream that I painted if I believe that my wish is an approach run, I'll

be able to fly
When we gather again here someday and chat
The footprints from the days which I traveled with a wind of my own will be covered by the waves
