I stood still in the windy city if I had turned around, I'd have seen the se tting sun already disappearing
I saw the beginning of a quite night alone
Avoiding the place I usually met with you, I took a detour
Every time the lights of the city glimmer, I stand still again

I always thought to blame you for all the little lies and selfishness Looking up at the sky over and over when I remember, my heart feels like it would break

Good bye, I wanted to protect you forever and always

Even if I force myself to laugh and pretend I've forgot, I'll never forget you

Our touching fingers were searching for your feelings and my desires
It was to the point that we didn't need any words our hearts had reached each other

You had your sky I saw my own sky
The two shapes that overlapped changed bit by bit in those days...

I shouted until my voice was hoarse my feelings didn't reach you
The future that I had vowed to have with you was interrupted that day will never come back

Good bye, I wanted to protect you forever and always
Even if I force myself to laugh and pretend I've forgot, I'll never forget you
