Muttering to myself on a white winter morning
Did the reason for tears also become snow in the sky?

I shivered at the love that I seemed to be losing bit by bit

There's only one thing shining high in the sky a voice calls my name
I swear my love to the far-off star I'll go and meet you there
Right now

Somebody said that the wounds would heal
I wonder if I'll see you at our meeting place today

The inside of my heart seems like it will be crushed even though I understood your intentions

My sigh melts into the white sky the miracle we saw together
The seasons chased after if they were to come back I would never leave your side again
I love you

The pain and the sadness I want to hold it all

There's only one thing shining high in the sky a voice calls my name
I swear my love to the far-off star the miracle we saw together
The seasons chased after if they were to come back I would never leave your side again
I love you

I will never leave your side again I love you
