God speaks his love through splits in tongues white light come forth right death before you go breathe again and smile for the first time you go breathe again and smile for the first time white light come forth right death before you go breathe again and smile for the first time you go breathe again and smile for the first time you go breathe again and smile for the first time