

Angel

Asher Monroe

I keep drowning in my sorrows
Living on the edge
Falling into pieces
Is it all in my head?
Back is up against the wall
Never felt so small
Dreamt I could run
But instead, I can crawl

Do angels cry when love treats you unfair?
Do birds sing at night to wake you from a nightmare?
Is love blind, does time heal?
Will the universe conspire to make your worries disappear?
Questions of life seem to arise
I keep searching for the light until it shines

Have you ever walked a mile,
In someone else's shoes?

Do you ever wake up,
Feeling the blues?
When the saddened sun won't shine
The stars won't align
Just know there's a reason
Know there's a rhyme

Do angels cry when love treats you unfair?
Do birds sing at night to wake you from a nightmare?
Is love blind, does time heal?
Will the universe conspire to make your worries disappear?
Questions of life seem to arise
I keep searching for the light until it shines
Questions of life seem to arise
I keep searching for the light until it's mine