

Where's The Sun

Aslan

Lay your head down, in Cardboard City
'Cause you've nowhere left to go
Everything at home is far too pretty
But I guess you just got bored
Sitting by your window, watch the world float by

Love is bought and love is sold
Like running water's hard to hold
Is the sun beneath the sea
Maybe that's the place where I should be
Missing out on all your beauty sleep
Running up hills that are far too steep
Holding on to everything, but it burns your skin
Walking out doors, that just won't let you back in
Sitting by your window, watch the world float by
Got some happy in your head, but It don't stop to cry

Love is bought and love is sold
Like running water's hard to hold
Is the sun beneath the sea
Maybe that's the place where I should be
Missing out on all your beauty sleep
Running up hills that are far too steep
Holding on to everything, but it burns your skin
Walking out doors, that just won't let you back in
Sitting by your window, watch the world float by
Got some happy in your head, but It don't stop to cry

You can't stop the world turning, so you can climb off,
Just because your so afraid of finding yourself lost
