

I'm The Fool (Who Told You To Go)

Asleep At The Wheel

Last night, you told me you were leaving
And I didn't try to stand in your way
But the morning has found me reconsidered
Wishing I had begged you to stay

Because now I can feel the heartache
And the pain of being alone
I can't believe your leaving is doing this to me
Because I'm the fool who told you to go

You find it so hard to make me love you
You gave me your love, I didn't earn
I pushed you away and now you're out of reach
And I'm left here praying your return

Because now I can feel the heartache
And the pain of being alone
I can't believe your leaving is doing this to me
Because I'm the fool who told you to go
Yes, I'm the fool who told you to go

Leroy, right there yeah
Alright thank you
Leroy Preston over the zone, thank you
Yeah, tell me I'm The Fool Who (Told You To Go)
Why'd you do that Leroy, huh?
Here come man down here who gonna get to a little swing thing, uh
Well, yeah, let's get to that right now
We're gonna stick to the ceiling right now here
We're gonna start flying around here
We're gonna Floyd Domino and one of the piano's gonna start thi s one of and uh
We're gonna file a suite in a half a second
There's an old camp base tour way back from uh, years gone by
