

Call The Dawn

Assemblage 23

Two islands far apart that share a raging sea
Two radios tuned in to different frequencies

There are chasms too wide to ever be breached
There are many destinations never meant to be reached
There are footsteps in a journey we will never conclude
There are chapters in this book that we will never read through

Dissolve
Fade out
But don't forget, don't succumb to self-doubt
Be strong
Move on
Allow the setting of the sun to call the dawn

Two stars that share the skies in separate galaxies
Two trees that grow apart, but sway in the same breeze

There are chasms too wide to ever be breached
There are many destinations never meant to be reached
There are footsteps in a journey we will never conclude
There are chapters in this book that we will never read through

Two pairs of feet that walk in their own distinctive paths
Two shared disasters each with their own aftermaths

There are chasms too wide to ever be breached
There are many destinations never meant to be reached
There are footsteps in a journey we will never conclude
There are chapters in this book that we will never read through