

Just So You Know

Assuming We Survive

Jesse was a girl
That I knew back in middle school
She got me into rage
And bands that I never heard or knew
And one day she started feeling different
I knew she needed change
And when I saw Jesse three years later
I knew he was the same

Just so you know
You are not alone
There's a million of us
Waiting to be judged
For who we are and what we do

Just so you know
You are not alone
There's a million of us
Full of broken hearts
Just waiting to be loved

Eric was a kid
And his dad made up all the rules
He never had no friends
He never thought that he was cool
And one day he told his dad
That he loved the boy across the street
With a heavy look of disappointment
His dad said he should leave

Just so you know
You are not alone
There's a million of us
Waiting to be judged
For who we are and what we do

Just so you know
You are not alone
There's a million of us
Just waiting to be loved

It's okay to not be okay
You gotta love yourself and find your way
It's okay to not be okay
You gotta love yourself
The only difference between us
Is who we are
It's okay to not be okay
You gotta love yourself

Just so you know
You are not alone
There's a million of us
Waiting to be judged
For who we are and what we do

Just so you know

You are not alone
There's a million of us
Full of broken hearts
Just waiting to be loved

Just so you know
You are not alone