Begin Again from the Beginning

Ataris

I traveled to each road and the end of the earth With no where else to go I looked back in amazement When I finally realized how farther I had actually gone I was still standing in the same place that I started Till I found out and I cried out that there was silence A definite silence... more brilliant than anything

And there was a bird with feathers brightest red and it spoke
At least that what you saw
I saw an angel on the whitest Novembers morning
And I had sang the sweetest cry since she wanted to reach down
And tell me that it would me all right
And tell me it would be alright

I walked out and stared into the golden sun
I was blinded by an endless timeless beauty
Till i found out and I cried out that there was silence
A definite silence... more brilliant than anything

And there was a bird with feathers brightest red and the smoke At least that what you saw I saw an angel on the whitest Novembers morning And I had sang the sweetest cry since she wanted to reach down And tell me that it would me all right And tell me it would be alright