

I have been breathing with upside down lungs
Exhaling oxygen shaped like songs
All of these breaths, when they exit my chest
Refuse to assist me in righting my wrongs

And I have been watching through backwards eyes
Seeing nothing but thoughts I've invented
And each of those images, though it's familiar
Never quite matches up with my intentions