

If All I Thought Were True

Attack In Black

If priests are princes' hallowed shadowed souls if devils are angels cast to know I live forever with a sharp regret it might be a surprise to know I never wished for death a hint of misery made its way along to those who've never harmed or never wronged if honesty changed the hearts of men who could contend?

in this great divide that is my life I fear to think of all I'd undo

even my own ears would never care to know what deep inside ourselves our hearts behold a sky in shards, our world's unraveled parts impossible to piece as one in our unending dark
