Looking out through painted windows Deep-rooted and without a clue Sets aside all differences and everything he's used to Takes a walk and the water falls Dries off so nobody knows That all along he's been trying to break away. Waking up, feel a heart that's beating Take a breath and feel that you're alive Who would have guessed that just by being you That you'd make it through this time? Another case of a fucked up dreamer Not knowing when to say when Believes in everything that he wants to believe in All a part of his identity Searches for happiness And makes it on belief All in all it's just a fantasy He runs around in circles Trying to figure out just who it is we are

Looking through painted windows!
Your dreams become reality and fantasies an opportunity Reality in dream!
Just take another look inside, now take hold
And tell me what you see

Looking through painted windows!

New visions of a world that's been passing by
And right before your eyes

Nothing's as it seems!

A vision of the future and it seems fine.

Live a day to ask another question

Get an answer find another lie

How beautiful does it all seem when looking from the inside?

Find out what makes you different

Hold true and don't turn away

In doing so don't you know that you're gonna break away?

We're a part of our worst enemy

Tear us down and try to make us believe

All in all we're in a fantasy
We run around in circles
Trying to figure out just who it is we are

And looking through painted windows we hold onto our dreams

A moment passes by and it seems

To open the flood-gate and let the future flow

Now reach out and take a hold

Don't be blinded by the glare you see

Keep on and search, what makes you happy?

Make it happen, go and dream

Dreams become reality

Run with this life

Believe in all you've dreamt

And keep on trusting in who it is that you are

Jisto who it is that you are
