

This cut deeper than I thought
How do you hear me in this free fall drown
Build back doors when walls come down
It's a shy love
With nothing to hide from
How do I tell you that I've let you in Diamond eyes and porcelain skin

In the daybreak light
I see clear at night
I see colors again
I repent when I sin
And I stay when I don't want to see a new day

When my eyes shut
No one can find us
Where rain drops fall on sun lit halls
Distant echoes sing back calls
This is blind trust
The world is behind us
Can oceans flood
Is silence sound
Do angels smile when the devil frowns

In the daybreak light
I see clear at night
I see colors again
I repent when I sin
And I stay when I don't want to see a new day

When I don't want to see a new day
See a new day
Will I throw you away
What a beautiful waste
Will you bury me
Will you let me just throw you away
What a beautiful waste
When I don't want to see a new day

Daybreak light
I see clear at night
I see colors again
I repent when I sin
And I stay
