

Too Young

ayokay

You take two trains all this way
When you know I can't stay out for too long
You put too much weight, that I can't take I'm gonna break, it's getting hard to hold
I'm afraid, one day
You won't be okay out on your own
But I gotta let you know

Truth is you hold me back
Maybe I love you, I'm too young for that
And I know your expectations got me feeling trapped
Maybe I love you, I'm too young for that
And I know we're too, we're too young for that
We're too, we're too young for that
We're too, we're too young

You complain when I'm away
I'm telling you that this is just the start
I need a chance to find some space
To fall safe in someone else's arms, hey
Honestly I don't want to hurt you
But I gotta break your heart
This is getting hard

Truth is you hold me back
Maybe I love you, I'm too young for that
And I know your expectations got me feeling trapped
Maybe I love you, I'm too young for that
And I know we're too, we're too young for that
We're too, we're too young for that
We're too, we're too young for that
We're too, we're too young

Why are we holding on?
There could be so much more
Why are we holding on?
We're too young
Why are we holding on?
Are we afraid to fall?
Why are we holding on?
We're too young

Truth is you hold me back
Maybe I love you, I'm too young for that
And I know your expectations got me feeling trapped
Maybe I love you, I'm too young for that
And I know we're too, we're too young for that
We're too, we're too young
