Strange Denial

Bad Religion

A mutinous enemy Carved a nascent country Sweat, blood, and valor Forms the grit of our history

Bequeathed to everyone Chance and free expression Substance was restrained And the spirit was broken

I feel a strange denial Rhythmic as a change Constance as time Lonely insistent whispers Somber as a wave bye bye, bye bye

Searching for solution Without constitution Blackcoats by our sides Promising salvation

Advocating dogma
As tickets to hereafter
Mortals in their prime
With their desperate hands in the air

Daunting complex and burning Rhythmic as change Constant as time Conflicts, craving approval Weighted as a murder trial Oh I feel a strange denial

Correct is consensus Everything else, nonsense Forward is the hope Forget recompense

Peace and tranquility
Is only for the wealthy
Dearth for the massses
And inequality

I feel a strange denial Rythmic as change Constant as time Lonely insistent whispers Dissipating in the night Like a lone forgotten light

And no one is helping me It's a strange denial