

Passing Through

Balthazar

I've been away
I know I should have stayed
I'll probably just burn up running away from this shade
I've been alone
Like I should have known
Hanging in a lobby ready to sink like a stone

And there's a hole inside of my heart
But it don't show if I play it smart
Can you feel me?

I'm just passing through now
But baby wasn't it love?
I've tried it but then somehow
You can't hide what you're made of
Won't you lead me on the way to something good

I've been away
Searching night and day
But every corner I turn I see the same anyway
Could you undo
The trouble I went through
And every time I take a misstep I'll return to you

And there's a hole inside of my heart
But it don't show if I play it smart
Can you feel me?

I'm just passing through now
But baby wasn't it love?
I've tried it but then somehow
You can't hide what you're made of
Won't you lead me on the way to something good
Can you feel me?

Can you feel it?
