

Little Child

Bamboo

Currently disabled out of order
What should I do, what should I Keep
All my pride or my dignity
So few choices for the man on the street,
The way I look at the fire that burns
Never make the same mistake twice,
As we stumble and fall, And as time breaks and fall
I learn of things both here and beyond me

Little child I was once a little boy like you
But I grew up fast and I never did forget
The child that I once knew
Live as you have loved learn as you live
The higher power will give you
What your money can't give
And as tomorrow becomes yesterday
I learn of things both here and beyond me,
As tomorrow becomes yesterday

It's a games of liability,
A copyright of our own instability
The seed of hich you plant out will sow
It's that simple any farmer would know
No slight of hand from no charlatan
No political deceit from no politician
And as tomorrow becomes yesterday
I learn of things both here and beyond me.
