Bart Crow

You and I always had the dreams of going away
Never thought anybody listened to a word we'd say
Now everybody's fighting cause they wanna know your name
We just laugh and tell them its always been the same
Cause nobody knows your heart
They see you around town, think your whole worlds falling apart
We just laugh at who they are

Cause the walls been broken, chains ain't holding
Lines been drawn in the sand
And there's no more lying, tears ain't crying
Baby won't you take my hand
Cause they're never gonna understand
No they're never gonna understand

Eleven years now and they still keep looking your way
They're hoping and praying that they'll find something new to say
They see you around town and your new dress gives you away
And the ring on your hand says there's so much left to say
Cause nobody knows your heart
They see you around town think your whole worlds falling apart
We just laugh at who they are

Cause the walls been broken, chains ain't holding
Lines been drawn in the sand
And there's no more lying, tears ain't crying
Baby won't you take my hand
Cause they're never gonna understand
No they're never gonna understand

We just laugh when they talk all around this town
Maybe we should get away, put the hammer down
Baby put that hammer down

Cause the walls been broken, chains ain't holding
Lines been drawn in the sand
And there's no more lying, tears ain't crying
Baby won't you take my hand
Cause they're never gonna understand
No they're never gonna understand
