when it goes up and down you lying awake trying to catch the sun there isn't a break and when we know there is nothing to say thousands of eyes turning away

deceit and losting deceit and lost

don't know
during this time
i'm trying where is the place
can i find
what do i want
i don't know

deceit and losting

speed of the daylight
blink of an eye
revolving circles parallel lines the empty spaces of the in between the closer i look the further way that it seems

nobody knows the answer to the call
they one who realises
where we are
they who searching
they who stand and watch thousands of hours burning away
