Walking Back to Waterloo

Bee Gees

I wish there was another year, another time When people sang and poems rhymed My name could be Napoleon A thousand ships

A windy sail, so huge and high It's tall enough to touch the sky It's beautiful but hard to find But I just wasn't born in time

Walking back to Waterloo again Where do I begin ?
In the brand new street
You can get a good seat at the end

I can dream of growing trees and things That live and grass that's green In meadows that have never been But I still place my trust in the queen

What is life, when a man is pressured Based on wrong or right?
And I don't know what it means
There must be more we haven't seen

Walking back to Waterloo again Where do I begin?
In the brand new street
You can get a good seat at the end

Walking back to Waterloo again Where do I begin?
In the brand new street
You can get a good seat at the end

Walking back to Waterloo again Where do I begin?
In the brand new street
You can get a good seat at the end
