

Cold

Before I Turn

I descend to a world where I can be alone
And I never thought that there'd be warmth like this
I said that I'd cave to a warm embrace
You thought that we'd have 'til the end of days
But we never thought that we'd end up like this

I feel alone 'til the warmth, it guides me
I feel the cold 'til your arms surround me
Take me away to a darkness that I know

Can I sleep alone, without you close to home?
The moment I feel deprived of life right from your eyes

I ignite the passion of her placid skin
I feel the satin that's forbidden within
She embraces everything that beckons me
Across oblivion and all of my sin

I feel alone 'til your warmth, it guides me
I feel the cold 'til your arms surround me

Can I sleep alone, without you close to home?
The moment I feel deprived of life right from your eyes
Emptiness, fading slowly
Feeling this, never ending

(Emptiness, fading slowly)
'Cause the cold inside my head, it never dies
(Feeling this, never ending)
No love or warm embrace to save my life
(Emptiness, fading slowly)
The body feels the warmth, but not the mind
(Feeling this, never ending)
And I'm leaving all my life behind

Can I sleep alone, without you close to home?
The moment I feel deprived of life right from your eyes
Emptiness, fading slowly
Feeling this, never ending
Can I sleep alone, without you close to home?
(Emptiness, fading slowly)
The moment I feel deprived of life right from your eyes
(Feeling this, never ending)
