

Bulletproof

Being As An Ocean

It's raining outside again
The flood gate's overwhelmed
There's no accounting for this mess of a mind
Or the damage we have dealt

All I know is that I'm sick
Of the weather
It's raining outside again
The persistence tapping at my pane
My shelter
Thunder claps, unhappy reminders

What can I do? (Stay, stay, stay)
I hate myself for losing you
What can I say? (Seasons change)
The leaves turn red and fall away
I'm not like you
I shatter easy far from bulletproof
What can I do? (Stay, stay, stay)
I hate myself for losing you

(I hate myself for losing you)
(I hate myself for losing you)

Our landscape changed but I stayed the same
My stubborn roots held firmly in place
Freezing limbs long forgotten, embrace the warmth of spring and summer
The love that they gave

All I know is that I'm sick
Of the weather
I've been trying to recapture a feeling
The persistence tapping at my pane
The wind blows
Every gust breathes a whispered reason

What can I do? (Stay, stay, stay)
I hate myself for losing you
What can I say? (Seasons change)
The leaves turn red and fall away
I'm not like you
I shatter easy far from bulletproof
What can I do? (Stay, stay, stay)
I hate myself for losing you

Maybe it's time that I embrace this change
Find some relief in the November rain
Think it's time to let go of all this pain
Let the flood waters come, wash away

Come and wash away

What can I do? (Stay, stay, stay)
I hate myself for losing you
What can I say? (Seasons change)
The leaves turn red and fall away
I'm not like you

I shatter easy far from bulletproof
What can I do? (Stay, stay stay)
I hate myself for losing you

(I hate myself for losing you)
(I hate myself for losing you)