Bella Morte

Still

The ice runs on for miles with solitude so close We end another day and stars light up the skies So lay your hand in mine your head upon my arm The stars, they burn like eyes The stars all burn for us Come stand by me, laughter calls and drives the wind It binds us close alone but for The sparks of heaven's smile Knowing you're here I will carry on with you To walk the world, through heavens gate We'll shine and light the sky We have come so far, yet there is far to go Still the stars burn bright; still our eyes burn true And as the worlds we walk alone And as the stars, we will never fade
