

Worth My While

Bella White

Well, the rain was coming down
On the night I rolled into town
I was wondering where you were sleeping

Well, I left home, my dear, to find
A way to ease the trouble all on my mind
So, why since then have I been hurtin'?

Well, I thought that once I got here, I'd be certain
That it all had been for something worth my while
I wanted your love
But all you ever wanted is someone to touch
And I don't think that will be me this time
Ooh

Well I can't fathom any new words
To try to explain how much it hurt
Just to spill my guts and you close your curtains

Well, I know a hill that I could climb
A place to go and pass the time
And wait for the day you say you're sorry

Well, I thought that once I got here, I'd be certain
That it all had been for something worth my while
I wanted your love
But all you ever wanted is someone to touch
And I don't think that will be me this time
Ooh

Well, I thought that once I got here, I'd be certain
That it all had been for something worth my while
I wanted your love
But all you ever wanted is someone to touch
And I don't think that will be me this time
Oh but I'll sit and I'll watch the rain fall tonight
Ooh