

Gasoline

Benjamin Tod

If you wake up in the morning
Oh I hope then you can smile

Ain't seen a grin for miles

And we can pour gasoline on the fire again
And if it don't start naturally
Why should we pretend
Oh anymore
And is it worth fighting for

And I know it's hard to break in
A heart as cold as mine
I stand before you naked
That's my best disguise

And we can pour gasoline on the fire again
And if it don't start naturally
Why should we pretend
Anymore
And is it worth fighting for

Oh and all the time we've wasted
Not seeing eye to eye
I would not trade the place with
Any other life

We can pour gasoline on the fire again
And if it don't start naturally
Why can't we pretend
Oh anymore
It is worth fighting for
