

Although the average human brain only makes up 2% of a person's body weight, it consumes more energy than any other human organ. Proper nutrition is directly linked with attentiveness, work rate, and creativity. Nutrition also relies heavily on a person's environment and the company they keep.