

Nothing Left

Beth Crowley

I remember that night clear as day
Feeling helpless as you walked away
Wish I could rewrite history
To a story where you stay with me

Standing in the wreckage I can tell there's nothing left
And I don't believe you when you say you tried your best
You barely glance back at the damage in your wake
And you may never care that I'm the one you could have saved

Forever's what I promised you
But forever's meant for liars and fools
A check mark on my lessons learned
That you don't always get what you deserve

Standing in the wreckage I can tell there's nothing left
And I don't believe you when you say you tried your best
You barely glance back at the damage in your wake
And you may never care that I'm the one you could have saved

Standing in the wreckage I can tell there's nothing left
And I don't believe you when you say you tried your best
You barely glance back at the damage in your wake
And you may never care that I'm the one you could have saved

And you may never care that I'm the one you could have saved
