

Prayers Of An Atheist

Beth Nielsen Chapman

If love could say God's name
We'd hear a trillion sounds
Choirs from the balconies
And grass grow through the ground

The sound would ring so true
As every fist uncurled
One human family
All across the world

The prayers of an atheist
Sent from the emptiness
Even they find the way back home

If love could say God's name
And we would just be still
Silence would start to sing
And nature reveal God's will

The prayers of an atheist
Sent from the emptiness
Even they find the way back home

If love could say God's name
How could we not behold
One light, one peace, one grace
Shining in every soul
