

Dearest Amygdala

Biffy Clyro

Call me
Make me a better man
Believe me
Doing the best I can

Dearest Amygdala
What are you doing to me?
I'm trying to placate you
Double my dose up every week

All of my dreams
I've been chasing them down since I was seventeen
An irrational disease
That spread in-between you and me

But I'm never gonna give this up
I'm never gonna give it up
Too much will never be enough
Too much can never be enough
When part of the ceiling falls down
The floor starts to slip like your crown
Cast out before you were found
I had it the wrong way around
The wrong way is just another way
The right way is just another way

Fall for me
I'm being a better man
Appease me
I've run and run and ran

Dearest Amygdala, you've invaded my dreams
I never could ignore you
The same way you're ignoring me

Follow the screams
They've been catching me up since I was twenty three
An entirely new disease
That spread in-between you and me

But I'm never gonna give this up
I'm never gonna give it up
Too much will never be enough
Too much can never be enough
When part of the dream, it falls down
Belief starts to slip like your crown
Cast out before you were found
I had it the wrong way around
The wrong way is just another way
The right way is just another way

We defy the impossible
And it upsets the opposition
'Cause you're always getting close
Adopting a new position
For a change, for a change, for a change
For a change, for a change, for a change

For a change, for a change, for a change
For a change, for a change
We defy the impossible
And it upsets the opposition
'Cause you're always getting close
Adopting a new position
For a change, for a change, for a change
For a change
Hijacking your amygdala
For a change, for a change, for a change
For a change
Hijacking your amygdala
Amygdala