I feel like I forgot something
It's like my mind is getting emptied out
My footprints following me from a distance
I follow them backwards
Where the steps began
The round candies in the glass jar, waiting just for me

Full in the wide sparkling eyes
As if making the rolling sound
Someone's eyes come to mind
After gazing at them
When I just pick one candy
And bite the memory

Softly as if the sweetness fills my mouth
Freshly the sweet look spreads
Dizzily it's a dizzy but pretty flavor
Oh, it's so mystical
I have a faint hunch
To the moment before I feel this memory
I probably wouldn't go back

Bye, bye pour the memories down the mouth
My, my yesterday when I bite them, they pop
The sweet tangy black memories are
Endlessly overlapped in the palette that's what people call me
Oh, oh when was it
Oh, oh it's distant but
I'm vividly attracted to the dangerous extent

Full in the cheeks
Making a fresh smile
The voice of someone comes to mind
What is this feeling
When I pick the next candy
And melt the memory

Softly as if it is colored
Gently pop you spread in me
Purr it's a feel-good but sad flavor
Oh, it's so mystical
I have a faint hunch
With the moment before I taste this memory
This probably wouldn't be the same

How long have I waited
The moment of the long-emptied blank to be filled
I promise you in the eyes
I'll never lose us again

Softly as if the sweetness fills my mouth
Freshly the sweet look spreads
Dizzily it's a dizzy, but beautiful flavor
Oh, it's so mystical
I'm definitely sure
This memory will be irreplaceable
With anything else
