

Tragedy

Blacklite District

I can lose the only piece that
Makes me feel complete
Staring back at the memories
And the feeling of defeat
Though not making down
And my soul be found
And the laugh you took from me
They stole my ground
And you hold my ground
And the courtroom of the seat

This is a song and I have to sing it
These are my lies that I have to breathe
This is the key to all my feelings
And I can't make it home tonight

Now all these haunting me
Really wants a tragedy
Memories haunting me
Still inside my tragedy

I can still hear everything
You ever said to me
Sitting there and telling me
That you would never leave
You was a big lie
And I let it goodbye
Till myself I'd be okay
I gave in cause I wasn't gonna win
I only have myself to blame

This is a song and I have to sing it
These are my lies that I have to breathe
This is the key to all my feelings
And I can't make it home tonight

Now all these haunting me
Really wants a tragedy
Memories haunting me
Still inside my tragedy

I won't forget all the time we spend
As it go your way
Years go by, and still I cry
And I think about you every day
Nothing's all long as I write this song
But we have to move on
Sharing these tears after all these years
That really mean to move on

This is a song and I have to sing it
These are my lies that I have to breathe
This is the key to all my feelings

Now all these haunting me

Memories haunting me
Memories haunting me
