

Black Granite

Blaze Foley

Black granite, so silent, cries out to us all
Forever remember, never to crawl
You gave what you could give
While we gave it all
And remain unacclaimed names on a wall

The slaughter and torture we feel in your eyes, the years and t he fears
The orange colored skies
We gave all for nothing
And weren't you surprised
All for old glory, without knowing why

Black granite, so silent, cries out to us all
Forever remember, never to crawl
You gave what you could give
And we gave it all
And remain unacclaimed names on a wall

The heart blood of youth
Runs cold through your veins
Still searching for truth
And finding nothing but pain
You keep pounding the tracks like
A runaway train
While the war monger's hunger
Tastes blood again

Black granite, so silent, cries out to us all
Forever remember, never to crawl
You gave what you could give
While we gave it all
And remain unacclaimed names on a wall
