

Gravedigger

Blindside

Your heart, you thought it stopped
Beating for a while but it never did
Your lungs, held your breath
And thought it was your last
Closed your eyes and stepped into the casket
And closed the lid, but don't start talking to angels yet

Can you still hear your heart beating?
(Listen, cover your ears)
A father's heart burns and bleeds
(More than you ever thought it would)
I'm not here to tell you about a dying world
I'm here to, tell you that you're not dead yet
'Cause tonight I'm the grave robber
Taking you home

And I still feel it
Feel it from six feet under, oh-oh-oh
Every heartbeat makes the ground shiver
It's time my dear to wake up and smell
Fresh air and soil
As I break open the casket, piece by piece by piece

Can you still hear your heart beating?
(Listen, cover your ears)
A father's heart burns and bleeds
(More than you ever thought it would)
I'm not here to tell you about a dying world
I'm here to, tell you that you're not dead yet
'Cause tonight I'm the grave robber
Taking you home

This is not an eclipse
You're just underground
This is not an eclipse
I'm on my way down

(Grave robber!)
This is not an eclipse
You're just underground
This is not an eclipse
I'm on my way down for you

This is not an eclipse
You're just underground
This is not an eclipse
I'm on my way down for you

Can you still hear your heart beating?
(Listen, cover your ears)
A father's heart burns and bleeds
(More than you ever thought it would)
I'm not here to tell you about a dying world
I'm here to, tell you that you're not dead yet
'Cause tonight I'm the grave robber
Taking you home
