The sign in the road says we're going nowhere.

I been running down a dead end street.

I wanna rip through all the faces of the fools I see.

And I know I'll never get away

'cause the gutter taught me early that there ain't no better da ys for me.

I guess my childhood broke my heart.

Down in the projects you learn pain from the start.

That's where I learned to hate the world,

Just another lost soul praying to the night sky alone...

Can someone, someone please tell me where I went wrong? And how many more times will I have to sing this same old song? Can you tell me, tell me please, tell me where I went wrong? And how many more times will I have to sing this same old sad, sad fucking song?

I done my time on the city streets. Y'know that corner took a piece of me and my heart And made me an enemy of the world. Just another lost soul praying to the night sky alone.

I been running down this dead end street. I wanna rip through all the faces I see.

I'm lost forever on this dead end street.

I'll leave this epitaph that no one will read...
