

Heart on My Sleeve

Blood On The Dance Floor

Abandon all hope, there is nothing left
The emptiness grows stronger when love is forgotten
When you don't have control, when you can't take a hold
Powerless you'll be against the nothing

Don't fear the reaper when you lose your way
Have the courage to stare the dark right in the face
Stab into the unknown and start the journey
To let go

Turn the darkness into light

Your heart, it felt good
It was dripping on your sleeve
And you bleed those dreams
Not afraid to believe
And you hang like a star up there
You glowed in the dark
You shined a light
You gave me hope for a better tomorrow

Cloaking my own soul
Deadly is the sin
To carve out bones and castles
In twilight, the veil is thin

My ink is the passage
Between darkness and the light
Only it can freely pass
Where angels fear to tread

Turn the darkness into light

Your heart, it felt good
It was dripping on your sleeve
And you bleed those dreams
Not afraid to believe
And you hang like a star up there
You glowed in the dark
You shined a light
You gave me hope for a better tomorrow

Don't hide behind the walls
We've all been hurt before
I know your little heart can't take it anymore
So have the courage and have the balls
To wear your heart on your sleeve
And say, "Fuck them all!"

Your heart, it felt good
It was dripping on your sleeve
And you bleed those dreams
Not afraid to believe
And you hang like a star up there
You glowed in the dark
You shined a light
You gave me hope for a better tomorrow
