

Making Waves

Blood Youth

The day you left it pushed me even further
I'm working for myself, I'm working for my mother
To keep this roof over my own head
You're just another step on my broken neck

And I've been watching from the outside
Wishing for a way in
All I ever did was face your problems
You know they crushed me paper thin

And I'll drink this poison and hope I will forget

I'm just an animal you barely know
So reckless and untamed
Make me a stranger
You deserve more
But this is all that I can give

I have these vivid dreams of lost relationships
No longer holding hands with fears that don't exist
My generations burnt to the third degree
Because we're all so scared to be fucking lonely

Broken and rusted static
Nothing to help me get me past it

And I'll drink this poison and hope I will forget
And I'll drink this poison and hope I...

I'm just an animal you barely know
So reckless and untamed
Make me a stranger
You deserve more
But this is all that I can give
It's easy to forget when you're not sober
It's harder to become another
How will you pay for your sins?

Turn you into a moment
Turn you into a moment

Well you're fatal, you're just another name
You got me so high nothing feels the same
Fatal, you're just another name
You got me so high nothing feels the same
Nothing feels the same
