

Sad Serenade

Bloodsucking Zombies from Outer Space

She doesn't belong to the outside world, since the day she was born.
She has to make her way all on her own and all alone.
She's not Daddy's little princess, she's her mothers Nightingale.
She is the melancholy bird of a fairtale.

But it was this lie that makes her cry.
When this bird sings someone hast to die raise it high above her grave the sad serenade her tiny voice sings about sweet, love and bittersweet pain.

of broken wings and how she felt from grace the sad serenade of the nightingale she likes to play with her dead pets collected on the street and cries a 1000 diamond tears about their mortality the sadness of these days races into her soul washes away all of her smiles and leaves an instant woe she can't sleep at night she weeps and cries everything she loves has to die

her tiny voice sings about sweet, love and bittersweet pain

it's her frustration that sacrifices so damn much as nightingales would do for love her destination - suicide

her tiny voice sings about sweet, love and bittersweet pain
of broken wings and how she felt from grace
