

Keep You

Bloom

Back in Belrose
Drive past your house
The Outback out front
Must be your sisters now
So long ago
We were stupid kids
Haven't talked since then
I wish we did

I'll keep you, like a fly
Trapped in amber in my mind
A memory, perfect, divine
I'll come back from time to time

And now and then I start to miss it
The long drives and the way you spoke
But what's the point in reminiscing?
The light's on, but you're not home
I'm still picking up the pieces
Still screaming at your ghost
And I'm bad at keeping secrets
You haunt everywhere I go

We will never speak again (But there's beauty in silence)
There's a beauty in that
Our paths are divided
Our love preserved in time
All sins forgotten, yours and mine

I won't see you again (But there's beauty in silence)
And there's a beauty in that
You know where to find me
Our love preserved in time
All sins forgotten, yours and-

I'll keep you, like a fly
Trapped in amber in my mind
A memory, perfect, divine
I'll come back from time to time

Our paths are divided
But there's beauty in silence
You know where to find me
But there's beauty in silence
