

The Darkness We All Need

Blues Traveler

How I came to be
In a thunder's calm
The chaos reigned, but don't we all?
Like the drink of light
It tastes so young
Going down so quick and then it's gone

And I began to see
The darkness we all need
That the world has opened up and cast a light in front of me
And swept away my fears
And who I used to be
Learning that the good will overcome and set me free
Through the darkness we all need

And it came like fire
Lighting up the sky
Like some flash of hope to guide me home
And I have been so tired
Too tired to try
To brave the storm of the unknown

And I began to see
The darkness we all need
That the world has opened up and cast a light in front of me
And swept away my fears
And who I used to be
Learning that the good will overcome and set me free
Through the darkness we all need

And I began to see
Through the darkness we all need
That the world has opened up and cast a light in front of me
And swept away my fears
And who I used to be
Learning that the good will overcome and set me free

And I began to see
Through the darkness we all need
That the world has opened up and cast a light in front of me
And swept away my fears
And who I used to be
Learning that the good will overcome and set me free
Through the darkness we all need
