

She's missing...

BlutEngel

When she was born her life was innocent and pure
No hate, no fear, she never felt insecure
But as she grew up her life began to change
And for the first time she saw evil and felt pain

What's happened to her heart?
What's happened to her soul?

And she's asking what has happened to the world she used to know
Why does everything change in a way she can't understand
And she's asking what has happened to all the people she used to know
She's missing all the love and tenderness she felt before

The years went by, and all her dreams crumbled to dust
She felt alone she missed the feelings from her past
And then she woke up and tears began to fall
And for the first time she felt no evil or pain

And she's asking what has happened to the world she used to know
Why does everything change in a way she can't understand
And she's asking what has happened to all the people she used to know
She's missing all the love and tenderness she felt before

And she's asking what has happened to the world she used to know
Why does everything change in a way she can't understand
And she's asking what has happened to all the people she used to know
She's missing all the love and tenderness she felt before

And she's missing all the love she felt before
She's missing all the love she felt before
