

Back To You

Bob Moses

You keep running down the same track
Can't seem to find a better way
Maybe one day when I look back
I'll say I learned from your mistakes

Heavy when I get that feeling and it sends me reeling
Still I'm carrying the weight
Every time I get that feeling, and I hold back screaming
Now I'll say it to your face

If all of my love isn't enough
Could I be the drug racing through your veins?
Back on the run
Look what you've become
The unfortunate one just tryna find your way
Or so you say

You don't respect me honey
You hate to say it's true
Oh, well, now that's OK
'Cause everything will come back to you
You don't respect me honey
No matter what I do
Oh, well, now that's OK
'Cause everything will come back to you

You've been wandering the back streets
Always hiding from the truth
I can tell you what you don't need
Sympathy
I gave enough of that to you

Heavy when I get that feeling and it sends me reeling
Still I'm carrying the weight
Every time I get that feeling and I hold back screaming
Now I'll say it to your face

If all of my love isn't enough
Could I be the drug racing through your veins?
Back on the run
Look what you've become
The unfortunate one just tryna find your way
Or so you say

You don't respect me, honey
You hate to say it's true
Oh well, now that's okay
'Cause everything will come back to you
You don't respect me, honey
No matter what I do
Oh well, now that's okay
'Cause everything will come back to you

If all of my love isn't enough
Back to you

If all of my love isn't enough

Could I be the drug racing through your veins?
Back on the run
Look what you've become
The unfortunate one just tryna find your way
Or so you say

You don't respect me, honey
You hate to say it's true
Oh well, now that's OK
'Cause everything will come back to you
You don't respect me, honey
No matter what I do
Oh well, now that's OK
'Cause everything will come back to you