There's a man on the corner today With a whole lot of nothing to say He claims to be an ex-prophet see He got something that's good for me Said he'd seen people like you before Don't want to worry about the world no more Telling yourself everything's okay When you know that ain't so Holding heart's afire Lost in your desire Hoping to find your dream somehow Any given day now Any given day now Yeah for one little price I could bring to you Any little thing that you want me to You take what you want, leave all the rest I got love, money or happiness And for one dollar you could see angels call For two dollar you could see your enemies fall For three dollar you could be king for a day And watch your blue blues sail away
