Homeless

Boogie Down Productions

Yeah... You could call a man a bum with disgust on your morning run 'cause he lives outside in the street, you don't know this But you've failed to realise that the one you so despise Reflects yourself 'cause every black man is homeless You could take your Alka-Seltzer while you talk about shelter You might even want to talk about a little loan 'cause no matter how rich you become you'll always be two, not one 'cause believe it or not, America ain't your home We've been taught to say our name, Afro-American, all the same Not fully American but gettin' there very slowly 'cause to fully be American, you know, you gotta take out the w ord 'Afro' Now they've relaxed I hear they might as well call us Toby See, Afro and black are African, while theft is American So how can Afro-American make much sense? Your ancestors come from Africa By stealing them now you're born in America

So the black man is homeless even though he pays rent Some black people say 'We built this place So we are American, but of the black race' Well let me make this little topic known The Japanese also built this place In technology and they're winnin' the race But at the end of the day the Japanese can go home Do you see the point that I'm getting at? I'm not a racist, I'm statin' a fact Blacks are actually prisoners of war 'cause while South Africa continues to fight We try our best to look more and more white Proof that the blacks have been stripped of their core Well, I guess I didn't sing and dance enough For black radio to play this stuff But this ain't soft like ice-cream with a sugar cone I'm only here to state one fact Wake up African, your colour is black And every black man is homeless 'cause he ain't got no home.
