

Lights

Borknagar

When the dotted lights
Crawl like bugs
On the canvas high above
All I love

And the answer's in my sheets
I forget about tomorrow
And my sorrow

Leave it to the great painter
To open the world and my mind
Leave it to my mind
To expand on his creation

Freedom exists on a greater scale
Beyond the dome above

In the morning light
In the morning light

The air vibrates
With awareness

So now that you see me
A servant in the snow
And now that you hear me
I broke free long ago

I took the world and broke it up
To force it down
I picked the pieces up
And wore them like a crown

And my light shone through forever
And the sky would never hold
And my light shone through forever
And the sky would never hold

I took the world and broke it up
To force it down
I picked the pieces up
And wore them like a crown

My heroes
They all died so long ago
My heroes
All died so long ago
