I can't stand The bitter denial Neglected consciousness Forgotten rights The book has been written You cant change the ending What is your confusion Know your own condition Lay down and think about how you've lived out Your wasted time here is over and gone They left us and we can start now our evolution Expired, Empty, Expired, Extinction The refugees have deserted the city No longer producing the age old concerns Of how we can conquer and watch them crumble It's far too late to question They knew this would happen the book has been written Set in stone now they've seen it now they know Is this a miracle or imagination your invention or destruction We are here alone At last we are finding answers Reveal the meaning of what we really are.
