

Fool

Born Without Bones

"Am I almost dead?"

I get the feeling that he'd forget
When you told him that you want to and you will
And you almost bred
You took a pill and ended that
Keep on living how you want to
But he never could hold you back
You should call him stupid and run away

If you ever feel lonely again
Just remember that fool
You were never scared
And he was always there
Calling you out when you'd say that someday we die off

In a wedding dress on a day that you'll forget
No proposal, no cathedral, and no guilt
'Cause you're so depressed and it's hard to regret that
When you told him what you wanted
But he never could trust or care
Kept calling you stupid so you ran away

If you ever feel lonely again
Just remember that fool
You were never scared
And he was always there
Calling you out when you'd say that someday we die off

And fly on
We die off
If it's what you believe and it feels obscene
But you know that it's true
Was it humility?
Did it keep you broken?
You're so clean since you broke free

If you ever feel lonely again
Just remember that fool
You were never scared
And he was always there
Calling you out when you'd say that someday we die off
He's calling you out when you say we'll die off
He's calling you out when you say we die off
Alright
